Adam Heron Piano

A multidisciplinary composer and pianist of Nigerian-Filipino ancestry, Adam Heron won the Harriet Cohen Bach Award in 2020. Born in Hong Kong, then adopted by his Irish mother, Adam achieved widespread recognition following his 2018 television debut as a BBC Young Musician category finalist. Through his cosmopolitan heritage, coupled with a flair for storytelling, he is a leading ambassador for Black classical musicians.

Adam commands a thrilling schedule of international concerts, collaborations, and outreach engagements, having performed at distinguished venues around the world. Also a keen linguist and traveller, his career has featured solo recitals at the International Center for Arts in Cairo and the National Centre for the Performing Arts in Mumbai, in addition to international festival appearances. Adam also enjoys regular partnerships with major broadcasters including BBC Radio 3 and BBC Four, having worked alongside eminent presenters including Katie Derham and Sean Rafferty. A devoted ensemble pianist, he has joined forces with many esteemed musicians.

Nina Savicevic Piano

During her time at Wells, Nina gained success in various competitions, most notably winning first place at the Birmingham Piano Competition, first place in the piano category at Taunton Young Musician, and third place and Audience Prize at the Windsor International Piano Competition. She has competed in BBC Young Musician and was a finalist at the Scottish International Youth Competition. Nina was also awarded the Robert Lewin Scholarship from Awards for Young Musicians which enabled her to work alongside the BBC Symphony Orchestra at Maida Vale Studios. In 2026 she was a participant in the Mayenne International Piano Competition, and is currently preparing for competitions in Croatia and Spain.

Born in Exeter 2001 of Croatian-Serbian descent, Nina often performs across the UK and abroad. She has also performed on BBC Radio South West with David Fitzgerald, and BBC Spotlight with Victoria Graham and Justin Leigh.

In partnership with Wards Solicitors.
